Raleigh Hotel.Washington, February 5.—(By Constitution Bure.)—Payment of claims aggregating $6,000,000 to 285 southern oil mills and similar concerns for losses sustained by the cancellation of orders by the government following the war is proposed in a bill introduced today by Senator
Robinson, of Arkansas.Forty-seven Georgia companies were included in the list, with claims totaling approximately $1,000,000.
Explaining the history of the claims, Senator Robinson said:
"During the prosecution of the war with Germany the war industries board, in order to produce the necessary amount of munition liners needed by the United States in its munition program, issued rules covering cotton liners."The rules required the delivery to the government of all the liners cut by those owning and operating cottonseed oil mills.

Agreed on Purchase.

"The government then made a contract with the various cottonseed oil mills throughout the south and middle west, in which it agreed to purchase all cotton liners produced from August 1, 1918, to July 31, 1919. The cotton mills were required to sell the liners at the price fixed by the war industries board. The food administration then took charge of the entire cottonseed oil industry."
The food administration required that all of the mills should secure licenses which were issued under rules and provisions made by the food administration. These rules, of course, were framed for the purpose of inducing the farmer to produce large amounts of cotton seed, and the food administration therefore fixed an attractive price and required all of the cotton seed oil mills to pay this price.

Paid Prices Fixed.

The cottonseed oil mills were,
therefore, required to crush seed and

News Agency learns from Lausanne that Ismet Pasha has accepted the allied terms respecting capitulations.
Ismet, according to an earlier dispatch to Havas, informed M. Bompard, head of the French delegation, after today's conference that the Turks were disposed to consider the allied treaty as finally presented and with Sunday night's last minute concessions included, might not refuse to sign. The negotiations were then renewed, and as at present believed,
with successful results.

Conferences Adjourned.

Lausanne, February 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—The latest statement put forth officially from Near East conference quarters is that the conference is not hopelessly wrecked,
but merely suspended, or adjourned.
This is the result of renewed efforts at mediation.

Curzon Outlines Situation.

London, February 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—The cabinet council today was confined to hearing the report on the Lausanne conference of Marquis Curzon, the foreign secretary, who headed the British delegation at the conference. The council will reconvene tomorrow for discussion of the future policy.Lord Curzon previous to the meeting today gave the king an account of the proceedings at Lausanne and their unsatisfactory termination. The general impression is that there will be no immediate noteworthy developments here and that the government will wait the outcome of the efforts apparently still being made at Lausanne to induce the Turks to change their attitude.

was to be in the party. However,
at the last moment Miss Davis de-

she opened the door against the foot of the burglar, who had just emerged from a bedroom into the hallway.
"What are you doing in here?"
she demanded.He stood speechless for a moment,
and upon a second demand from Miss Davis, answered her question by himself making an inquiry: "Are you the mistress of this place?" he asked.
Quickly assembling his wits the intruder explained that he was a revenue officer and that he was holding a prisoner in the basement, a man
he found in possession of whisky,
and who claimed to live in that apartment, and that he was searching the place for other contraband goods.Miss Davis immediately backed out of the door of the apartment and leaving immediately and making his exit out of the rear.A hurried examination of the belongings which Miss Davis made while Detectives Roper and Pittman were present failed to show just what had been taken, if anything. The officers believe the man was a "jewelry thief," and confined his search for such articles, not bothering to take clothes or other things.

While only a young man Mr.

December 5, 1855. Since coming to Atlanta he had been prominently associated with the business develop-the automobile trade throughout the country as the originator of the plan whereby purchase of automobiles is financed on an installment basis. To the automobile trade in Atlanta he was affectionately known as "Uncle Joe."He was president and founder of the Automobile Credit Sales company, having offices in the Atlanta National Bank building. In his years of business life he was noted for his deep interest in the development of young men.

Mr. Moody was the first member elected to the Capital City club, being the first to become a member after the organization was formed by charter members. He was elected to life membership in the Elks only about ten days before his death. He was a member of Sacred Heart church.He was one of the original "Bell

viously to his marriage on February 5, 1880, to Hannah G. Sheehan, daughagriculturists state, would play havoc with the boll weevil, was predicted for Atlanta early Tuesday morning, in the Monday forecast of C. F. von Hermann, of the local weather bureau.

During the day Monday indications of snow visiting Atlanta disappeared and Tuesday was expected to be partially cloudy and cold. Wednesday, the weather bureau declared, might be feared by cold northwest or north-winds, after which considerable rise in temperature is forecast.

Storm Saves Weevil.

Sudden and extreme cold weather predicted for Georgia in view of the actions of the cold wave which paralyzed business in a number of southern cities, was expected to result in widespread destruction to the boll weevil in Georgia, but the appearance of a storm to the south prevented the drop to a point where the liberating pest might be expected to perish.
With a minimum temperature as high as 28 degrees, agricultural authorities pointed out that the boll weevil would not be killed in any great numbers, and that this cold snap could not be counted upon to favor conditions for farmers to any great extent.Authorities pointed out that the weather has not been sufficiently warm during the period just preceding this cold spell to draw the boll weevil from hibernation to any general extent, but conceded that a good percent of the pests had doubtless come from winter quarters and would be killed. The number destroyed, however, it was stated, would be so small that the coming crop year will begin

Limitations on Supreme Court Powers.Washington, February 5.—Congress has been likened to a messenger boy standing in the ante-room of the su-disapproval of its act, Representative Frear, republican, Wisconsin, said today in a statement accompanying a record of closely divided supreme court decisions on a constitutional question which he placed in the congressional record.

Mr. Frear proposed a constitutional amendment giving congress the power to determine how many members of the supreme court shall join in decisions declaring laws unconstitutional, to provide for the recall of judges without impeachment or to review and set aside decisions by a two-thirds vote of both houses.The "decision of the supreme court," said Mr. Frear, "declaring the income tax law unconstitutional by five judges to four, followed by the enactment of the income tax sixteenth constitutional amendment, holding stock dividends non-taxable by the same vote, call for relief and some method of enacting laws that are not in the judgment of the court 'supposed laws.'"He also cited the finding in the Newberry case and the decision holding the child labor law invalid as having been handed down by closely divided courts.
Within thirty days, Mr. Frear said, the department of labor "has called attention to the fact that 300 statutes, bills and ordinances have been set aside by the courts in the present epidemic of judge-made law."PLAN LONG TERMS

That Recent Consumption of Coal Shows Increase of 11.43 Per Cent.Washington, February 5.—Stocks of bituminous coal in storage in the United States January 1 amounted to 36,000,000 tons, as compared with 33,000,000 tons on November 1, according to F. R. Wedgfield, federal fuel distributor, who declared today the condition indicated that the bituminous coal crisis created by last year's strike had definitely passed.
The estimate of the amount of coal in storage was based on a survey made by the distributor in co-operation with the geological survey and the census bureau.Consumption of bituminous coal is approximately 9,000,000 tons per week, Mr. Wedgfield estimated, while average weekly production is amounting to 11,000,000 tons. The total of bituminous coal in storage on September 1 amounted to 22,000,000 tons, and on October 1 to 23,000,000 tons.
"The significant fact is that bituminous production is now greater than consumption," Mr. Wedgfield said, in a statement, "and in consequence stocks have begun to recuperate toward normal. The wage agreement with the United Mine Workers having been settled for a year from April 1 next and continuous production thus assured, the bituminous coal crisis seems to have definitely passed."

Drafting New Set of

was abolished and A. Lamar Poole, its chief, reduced to the rank of patrolman by action of city council Monday in passing, 15 to 14, the ordinance proposed by the police committee as its first major step in "reforming"
the police department. Mayor Sims stated that he will sign the ordinance
today.In response to a request by Mayor
Sims, a special committee of five councilmembers was authorized to devise a new set of traffic regulations aimed to correct permanently the existing congested condition of Atlanta's downtown streets. Alderman R. E. Gordon, mayor pro tem, who was presiding,
appointed Councilmen Wells, Jenkins, Beall, Calloway and York to the traffic ordinance committee.The abolishment of the detective department, the most sweeping change made in the city's affairs in many years, was effected only after a spirited debate that indicated a closer division of sentiment over the reform movement than had been anticipated.
The ousting of Chief of Police James L. Beavers, the next scheduled step in the reform movement, it was indicated, will meet stiff opposition from a determined minority.

Six Members Absent.

Six members of council were absent
at the meeting Monday. The ordinance was passed without necessity of Mayor Pro Tem Gordon casting his ballot.As a result of council's action, Chief Poole, whose official rank was previously first assistant chief, will lose his rank and be relegated to the police department as a patrolman, unless the police committee creates a position of higher standing, according to City Attorney James L. Mayfield. Poole was a captain of police before his appointment as chief of detectives, but this position was taken from him when he was appointed as head of the detective department by the old police board.Closeness of the vote on the ordinance, which is the first official move of the police committee in "purging"
the police department and making it as "clean as a hound's tooth," in line with the campaign promises of Mayor Walter A. Sims, came as a distinct surprise to councilmembers whose sentiments coincide with the mayor.

Amendments Defeated.

Efforts on the part of council members opposing the measure to amend it before it was adopted, were unsuccessful. Discussion of the ordinance and its provisions evoked a lively exchange of words, which caused the mayor pro tem to rap several times for order.

eleventh ward, scored the police committee for what he termed "an effort to humiliate and eject from the police department a man who had devoted almost his entire life to it." He denounced the tactics employed and stated it was nothing more than a "political movement, pure and simple, to oust Poole and Heavers." In concluding, he made a motion to abolish the police committee and place the responsibilities of the department directly in the hands of the police chief. His motion was declared out of order by the mayor pro tem.

Refuse Salary Guarantee.

Councilman Edgar Watkins introduced a substitute amendment, which was lost, to allow all officers of the police department their present salaries in any other position to which they are assigned by the chief. Councilman Watkins also played the police committee for "trying to get rid of Chief Poole by this move" and stated he was convinced that it was nothing more than to accomplish this end. The ordinance was defeated.

Councilman J. Allen Couch arose and declared he was opposed to the ordinance. He stated that the police committee did not have the abolition of the police department as its motive, but that the ordinance was devised solely for the purpose of ousting Poole.

Puts Chief in Charge.

Members of the police committee including Chairman Jesse W. Armistead, Councilmen J. L. Wells and Fred Woodall, defended the ordinance, explaining that the motive prompting it was simply to adjust matters in the police department and place the power of administering the department in the hands of the police chief. Chairman Armistead stated, the chief of police was no authority over the police department, it being entirely by the chief of detectives.

"It is not the intention of this ordinance to abolish the detective department," asserted Chairman Armistead. "What it will do is simply to enable the chief of police to assign such men as he deems fit for duty in plain clothes to that department, which is directly in charge of this work, which has heretofore been the duty of the chief of detectives. The latter position, of course, will not exist under the ordinance, but the police chief may assign any officer or patrolman, as for that matter, to temporarily fill the place held by the chief of detectives."

Plans to Raise Morale.

The purpose of Chancellor Cuno, who plans a stumping tour of the Ruhr, is also to raise the morale of the people and urge them to present a solid front of opposition to the French.

Passive resistance has now spread from the Ruhr to Baden, the German state to the right of the Rhine, in which the French have seized Offenbach and Appenweier as reprisals for the action of the German government in cancelling the Paris-Baden-Prague express trains. The inhabitants of the state are refusing to comply with any orders of the French military.

According to German officials, the French seized the towns to split north and south Germany and to link Austria, Bavaria and Baden, which are all Catholic states, with France. The French, however, vehemently deny this charge.

Wichita, Kan., February 5.—With 27 persons unaccounted for, search was continued tonight for additional victims who may be buried beneath 12 feet of debris within the brick wall skeleton of the four-story Getto building, consumed by fire early today. The death toll stood at three this evening. Eight persons were seriously injured. Many received minor injuries.

Those believed to have perished include Cleon Wood, 26, who was a restaurant operator, and Miss Nellie Anderson, an employee of the Wichita club. Mrs. W. F. Wood, mother of the missing man, was badly burned.

SAVANNAH IS READY TO WELCOME TROOPS.

Savannah, Ga., February 5.—(By Associated Press.)—With hundreds of visitors here to join in the celebration, Savannah is ready to welcome the troops for the nation's American troops who will arrive Wednesday aboard the transport St. Mihiel from their watch on the Rhine. A half holiday has been declared by Mayor Seabrook, the city has been decorated with flags and plans completed for entertaining the arrivals.

Although the St. Mihiel was scheduled to arrive here at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning, the exact hour of arrival is uncertain, according to a diagram from the transport's commander, which said the commander was of the opinion the ship would not arrive at the Savannah light-house before 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Official Escort.

When the transport crosses Tybee Island, she will be met by the coast guard cutter, Yamacraw, which will escort the St. Mihiel to the dock. Aboard the cutter will be Mayor Seabrook and a number of others, while members of the American Legion and representatives of shipping interests at the harbor are planning to meet the transport in tug.

A reception committee including Governor Thomas W. Hardwick, Mayor Seabrook and a number of prominent Savannahians and army officers will officially welcome the troops at the dock.

Reception plans provide for special attention for the German wives of many of the soldiers and for the children. Several of the men aboard the transport are reported on the sick list, while two are in confinement, and it is planned to provide special care for these.

Plan Barbecue.

A barbecue for the enlisted men and their families, arranged by merchants of Savannah, is on the afternoon program, to follow a parade of troops assigned to Fort Screven, near here. Motion picture theater men of the city have announced they will admit to the theaters free of charge Wednesday all men in uniform. Refreshments provided by various merchants will be distributed to the troops by members of local patriotic organizations.

Immediately after the barbecue the soldiers will winter at the Fort Screven, numbering about 400, with their families will entrain for the fort.

Banquet for Officers.

A banquet in honor of the returning officers is planned as the event of the evening. The public has been invited to the banquet. Prominent men of Georgia, including many state officials and army officers, will be at the speaker's table.

The St. Mihiel has aboard 908 enlisted men and officers, 74 German wives and 24 children. The German mother-in-law of one man is reported to be aboard the transport. Approximately 500 enlisted men and officers are to disembark here, those not assigned to Fort Screven or at other southern ports to be discharged here.

The transport is expected to dock Thursday at Charleston, S. C., where several officers are to be landed, after which the St. Mihiel will proceed to New York.

General W. P. Meldrum will be toastmaster and among the speakers will be Mayor Paul E. Seabrook, Governor Thomas W. Hardwick, General David C. Shanks, General C. S. Farnsworth, General Eli K. Coles, Colonel Bates and Brigadier General Robert J. Davis. A dance will follow the dinner.

The first audible evidence of the arrival of the St. Mihiel in port will be the firing of a salute from the ancient guns of the Chatham artillery and some modern equipment of the same command. This detachment is firing a salvo at the foot of East Broad street, the eastern entrance to the harbor, and when this signal is given, the fire bells in the city and other noise-making devices will be put into action.

The local committees announce today every detail is ready for the coming of the boys from overseas.

ARMY OFFICERS GO TO SAVANNAH.

Savannah, Ga., February 5.—(Special.)—Major General Charles S. Farnsworth, chief of infantry, who has been making an inspection of the infantry school, Fort Benning, accompanied by Captain Shoemaker, former Benning commandant, left tonight for Savannah to take part in the welcoming home of the Rhine troops Wednesday.

BOAT MAY BE DELAYED IN DOCKING WEDNESDAY.

Savannah, Ga., February 5.—(Special.)—The transport St. Mihiel, which was expected to arrive from Washington on Wednesday, is being held up by a delay in the passage of the resolution by Senator Harris, providing for five senators and five representatives to come to Savannah as a delegation from congress to greet the soldiers returning from Germany on the St. Mihiel.

General Shanks, the war department said, would be solely in charge of permits of newspapermen and photographers to board the transport at Tybee bar.

Wireless messages said tonight that the St. Mihiel might be delayed an hour or two in getting into port, but it is expected she will be docked well before noon on Wednesday.

"The mills bought from the farmer the entire crop for the year 1918-19 and paid for it the price fixed by the food administration, although the armistice came in November of 1918, and the crushing season did not end until the 31st of July, 1919.

"The cottonseed oil mills made these contracts relying upon the contracts which they had with the war department and continued the carrying out of the same until in December, 1918, when the war department suddenly gave notice to all of the cottonseed oil mills that it intended to cancel all of the contracts, and did so cancel such contracts, causing the mills to lose millions thereof."

In ordering that congress may determine, first, whether or not anything should be paid, and, secondly, how much, it is proposed to refer the whole matter to the court of claims, which has the machinery and author-

SOUTH CAROLINIAN HITS SPECULATORS

Wants U. S. Cotton
Grades Made Binding on
All Product Shipped in Interstate Commerce.

Washington, February 5.—Speculators are reaping a harvest of millions of dollars each year at the expense of the southern cotton planters. Representative Fulmer, democrat, South Carolina, said today at hearings before the house agricultural committee on his bill which would make government cotton grades binding on all of the product shipped in interstate commerce.

Mr. Fulmer said cotton was bought from the producer at grades lower than its real value and was sold to the consumer sometimes two or three grades higher. "Thousands of speculators," he said, "are growing rich in this way."

PREDICT WEATHER BELOW FREEZING

unless a long period of intense cold visit Georgia later.

Severe Spell Not Likely. The possibility of such a period of weather is considered very slight in weather circles.

"After this is gone," said Mr. von Hermann, "it will take at least a week for another cold wave to start. Right now a low pressure area is moving in the northwest, where rapidly rising temperatures are reported. It must get out of the way, then another cold wave must start—up there—and come on down here. It can hardly start within another week, and then it would require several days for it to reach here."

"Thus it would be about the middle of February before we could get another cold snap, and that is so late that a lengthy period of severe weather is entirely unlikely in view of the mildness of the weather so far this winter. I still believe we shall have an early spring."

NORTH CAROLINA GETS SNOW

Charlotte, N. C., February 5.—Snow, sleet and cold rain fell throughout the greater part of North Carolina today and to the western portion of Tennessee that borders North Carolina lay under a heavy blanket of snow. Henderson, N. C., was under 3 inches of snow today and High Point, Statesville and Hickory reported light snows. Sleet fell in Raleigh but melted rapidly.

SECOND DEATH IN BIRMINGHAM

Birmingham, Ala., February 5.—While Birmingham was emerging from the grasp of icy fingers which paralyzed power lines and wires communicating with the outside world, the sleet storm claimed its second victim tonight when Herbert McClain, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. McClain was electrocuted as he walked in the yard of his residence.

Street car service in Monroe, La., and Vicksburg and Jackson, Miss., were seriously impaired. Telephone communication in some places of the two states was put almost completely out of commission but was being rapidly restored tonight.

TWO KILLED IN MISSISSIPPI

New Orleans, February 5.—Louisiana and Mississippi were still shivering tonight in the coldest weather of the winter with a blanket of sleet and snow extending over the northern sections of the two states and in at least one instance to within one hundred miles of the gulf coast. The blizzard which started yesterday had subsided tonight.

Two fatalities had been reported as a result of the wintry blast. At Alexandria a young man was killed when his sleigh was struck by an automobile and at Lexington, Miss., Parham Williams, a leading citizen of that town and former member of the Louisiana legislature, dropped dead while shoveling snow off the walks in the yard of his residence.

Street car service in Monroe, La., and Vicksburg and Jackson, Miss., were seriously impaired. Telephone communication in some places of the two states was put almost completely out of commission but was being rapidly restored tonight.

NO FREEZING IN MACON

Macon, Ga., February 5.—Although cold weather was predicted tonight for Macon and vicinity the local weather observer said he did not expect freezing temperature. In sending out reports on the Benjamin river, the observer called attention to recent rains, suggesting that the Ocmulgee be closely watched for flood stage. The river today is a little more than four feet and is rising.

HE DARKENED HIS GRAY HAIR

Tells How He Did It.

Mr. J. A. McCrea, a well-known resident of California, who was called Daddy and Grandpa on account of his white hair and who darkened it with a home-made mixture, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and 1-4 ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.—(adv.)

NORTHWEST GEORGIA HAS BAD WEATHER

Lyerly, Ga., February 5.—(Special.)—Northwest Georgia is in the grip of the most severe weather for more than five years, rain all during Sunday freezing as fast as it fell and everything is covered with ice, many types breaking under the tremendous weight of the ice.

Telephone service has been badly crippled and it will be several days before repairs can be made to all lines that are out.

The thermometer registered 30 degrees throughout the day Sunday and the drizzling rain froze as fast as it fell and Monday morning the top of the earth is a huge mass of icicles.

statement to the Associated Press this afternoon said:

"If Turkey will come to some independent arrangement with Greece concerning mutual reparations or agree to its submission to some form of arbitration, then Greece will consider the state of war terminated."

"All other matters with Turkey are settled," he continued, "but if Turkey insists on reparations from Greece without reinsurance as to the damages caused to more than a million Greeks driven from Asia Minor then Greece must consider that the war goes on. It is for Turkey to say."

U. S. Position Unchanged.

Washington, February 5.—Presumably the failure of the Lausanne conference leaves the United States in the same position in which it stood when the decision was reached to send Ambassador Child and his colleagues there as observers. The Washington government then stood in a wholly different relationship to the conference than any of the other powers represented.

It alone had unbroken treaty relationships with Turkey covering the capitulatory rights of American nationals in Turkey. The United States has never been at war with Turkey and except for the action of the Turkish government in 1914 in declaring all the treaties of capitulation to have been abrogated, the validity of American treaty rights in Turkish territory has not been challenged.

Special Treaty.

It is to be assumed that if the Lausanne negotiations are not resumed, the United States will consider the question of negotiating such treaties may be made with the Turkish government, that procedure having been in prospect at the conclusion of the Lausanne meeting had it been successful in producing a treaty of peace between Turkey and the allies. The United States would not have been a signatory to that treaty of peace through a separate covenant with Turkey.

Hope for Renewal.

Paris, February 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—The failure of the Near East conference is deplored in Paris, but is not taken as too much of a tragedy.

Quoting Ismet Pasha's remark that he considered the conference still on, Petit Parisien maintains that there is still hope that the conversations would be renewed elsewhere with more success. Pertinax, in the Echo de Paris, attributes the failure of the conference to the failure of the allies last September and October.

Le Matin declares:

"In view of the clearly pacific intentions Premier Poincare has proclaimed lately, it would be surprising if he did not go the limit of possible conciliation to avoid France being drawn into a deplorable adventure."

BITUMINOUS COAL CRISIS NOW PASSED

which have accumulated coal stocks found, will be issued February 10 by the distributor.

Consumption Increased.

Cleveland, February 5.—This country is riding on the crest of a record prosperity wave, it is indicated in reports so far received of coal consumed by industries in January, Mark Kuehn, chairman of the fuel committee of the National Association of Purchasing Agents, announced here last night.

Mr. Kuehn made public the first report of the industrial consumption of coal in October, November and December to be issued by the association, which is making a survey of this consumption. The report shows an increase of 11.43 per cent over the preceding three months.

Coal stocks on hand on January 1 were sufficient for 31 days and the production of coal, both hard and soft on that day exceeded consumption by 9,250,000 tons, according to the report.

The following statistics are declared by Mr. Kuehn to be the first of the kind ever collected to aid the business man in following the industrial progress of the country:

Month—Product. Consump.
October 54,000,000 40,906,110
November 53,370,000 43,446,010
December 55,850,000 46,694,550

Figures for January have not been tabulated. Mr. Kuehn said, his estimate being based on the first few hundred reports received.

"I believe the January report will show an even greater percentage of gain in both production and consumption of anthracite and bituminous coal," he said.

Wage Scale Negotiated.

Kansas City, February 5.—Negotiations of a new wage scale was the task before a joint conference starting here this afternoon of coal operators and miners in the southwestern field which comprises Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas. The existing contract expires April 1.

The new agreement probably will cover a period of one year and probably will be similar to the tri-state contract recently negotiated in New York, W. L. A. Johnson, secretary of the Southwestern Interstate Coal Operators' association, said.

Station WGM—Gentlemen: Way up here in Michigan we listened very intently last night to the splendid entertainment broadcasted by your station.

Among the many stations we get from the radio The Atlanta Constitution seems to be about the easiest for us to reach and we have become so familiar with it that we recognize it even before the announcer calls its letters.

We think no more than just to express to you our appreciation of the efforts you are making for the entertainment of radio fans throughout the country.

MISS CROSSLAND
SCORES REAL HIT

Talented Young Atlanta Singer Made Debut to
WGM Fans on 6 to 7
O'Clock Program.

Miss Myrtle Crossland, charming and gifted young lyric soprano, made her debut to fans of Station WGM on the 6 to 7 o'clock broadcast last night, singing a number of the late and popular song numbers in a most acceptable manner.

Miss Crossland, a talented pianist, gave the accompaniments for Miss Crossland and interspersed the vocal numbers with a delightful piano solo. Miss Crossland is a recent addition to WGM's staff of exclusive artists and will be heard again from this station at an early date.

Miss Crossland has a beautiful and very melodious voice which was heard to unusual advantage in "My Buddy," "Love Me a Little," "The Rose Tree," "Don't You Remember the Time," "Sunrise and You" and other widely loved selections. Radio fans of the nation will heartily welcome her return on future programs from this station and WGM is to be congratulated upon its gifted and accomplished new star.

Mrs. Edward James, an ordained minister of the Baptist church, is making a determined fight for appointment as chaplain of the Missouri house of representatives.

The president greatly appreciates your letter of February 2 in which you enclosed a message from Mr. F. W. Webb, president of the Valdosta, Ga., chamber of commerce. While he hopes to be able to visit Valdosta as soon as Congress adjourns, he has as yet made no plans in connection with such a trip. He will be glad, however, to keep this invitation in mind in the event that he finds it possible to visit the south.

"Please be good enough to convey to Mr. Webb the president's hearty thanks for his generous interest."

JOHN ROCKEFELLER, SR.,
VERY MUCH IMPROVED

Ormond Beach, Fla., February 5.—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., was feeling so much improved from his recent attack of bronchial trouble that only the uncertain weather with occasional tropical showers was keeping him off the golf links today, it was stated at the Rockefeller home. Members of the household said the hoarseness he had as a result of his illness had not entirely left him but he was up and attending to his correspondence and business.

We Thank You.

SPECIAL PROGRAM
VERY ENJOYABLE

Station WGM Gives Special Arrangement for Fort McPherson Masonic Club Last Night.

Last night's 9:30 to 10:30 program from station WGM, arranged for the Fort McPherson Masonic club by Mrs. Ruth Mobley, was one of the most enjoyable broadcasts from this station in many months, offering a delightful variety of vocal and instrumental numbers, all of a group of brilliant and accomplished artists.

Mrs. Mobley, widely known pianist of this city, sponsored the splendidly arranged program and interspersed the musical numbers with readings of her compilation, among them, "Shadows," "The Great Physician," "Mother of Mine," "God's Radio," Mrs. Mobley's latest poem was given as a vocal solo by Miss Rose Cefalu, the music having been written for the poem by Miss Dora Duck of Atlanta. This number was the distinct feature of the broadcast and was unusually good.

Miss Cefalu, a talented coloratura soprano, gave a number of beautiful vocal selections. She has been heard many times on WGM programs and has a rich and very sweet voice. Mrs. John Foster, contralto, shared honors with Miss Cefalu by giving several enjoyable vocal solos, her splendid voice being heard to unusual advantage in "Climbing the Bar" and in a duet with Charles Brown, tenor soloist of St. Luke's Episcopal church.

Brown's range and well trained voice was splendid in "Love Me or Not," "The Lord Is My Light," and other widely loved selections. Miss Duck, the pianist on last night's special program, is choir director and organist of St. Luke's Episcopal church and is one of Atlanta's most accomplished and gifted artists. Her accompaniments and piano solos were most acceptable.

"From a Farmer."

Atlanta Constitution—Gentlemen: I have just finished listening to your concert this evening. Am able to get every word and every note of your program.

It sure is wonderful. I think to be able to sit here at our farm home and enjoy your concerts. Yours for further entertainment,

GIVES PROGRAM
UNDER DIFFICULTY

The Little Theater Guild, scheduled to hold a meeting at Cable hall Monday night, has been forced to postpone only to find that another meeting was in session there, whereupon the members proceeded to the Piedmont hotel and the program was carried out according to plans.

Mrs. Earl Sherwood Jackson read "The Pied Piper of Hamelin," accompanied by Miss Ruth Mobley, charming young violinist, played Andantino and Allegretto movements from the Sitt Concertino in E minor. Parker Howard's playlet, "The Chance of a Lifetime," made quite a hit, with Miss Harriet Holmes portraying the heroine and Walter Marvin the hero. Mrs. Jackson Chalmers played the music called for in the sketch.

Lodge Preparing
To Yield Crown
To Younger Men

Rather Than Be Pushed Out,
Veteran to Give Up
Spotlight.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.
United News Staff Correspondent.
Washington, February 5.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, the last of the famous group of elder statesmen which has dominated the United States senate since the days of Mark Hanna, is about to relinquish, in some measure, his active leadership in favor of younger blood.

Sensors Wadsworth, of New York, and Lenroot, of Wisconsin, have been selected as the two younger lieutenants.

For many months a group of younger senators have been restless to displace the old guard and their efforts have been made that Lodge retire from the leadership.

Not Ready to Challenge.
But whenever such intimations have reached him, Senator Lodge has emphatically refused to step aside and remain leader, and no group of senators has seen fit to challenge the venerable senator's leadership openly.

However, since the last election, the insurgents have been less docile. In the next congress, the younger senators, joining with outright progressives, will be in a position to challenge the leadership of Lodge.

Wadsworth represents the conservative wing and Lenroot the western, more progressive group. Lenroot is not a member of the LaFollette-Norris group of avowed progressives, but he is standing in the line of the regular republican group and his selection is designed to placate the western senators who have objected to eastern domination.

Charles Watson's Plans.
This move also checks the plans which had been made by friends of Senator Jim Watson, of Indiana, to make him leader, as well as those who were supporting Senator Curtis, of Kansas. Curtis is now assistant leader. His duties are to keep a majority of republican senators on call and to keep the initiative in the capacity under the new arrangement.

The slender, aristocratic figure of Senator Lodge will now be seen on the small floor less and less. He will direct party maneuvers from the seclusion of his office beneath the senate chamber and in that respect his influence will continue to be felt. But the elderly man with the Vandike beard will rarely be visible to the tourists who file into the galleries daily to see the senators in action.

HIS FATHER DEAD,
AMERICAN TO TAKE
TITLE IN ENGLAND

Washington, February 5.—Henry Edward Pellew, who last August inherited the right to assume the title of sixth viscount of Exmouth, died at his home here last night at the age of 94, still an American citizen. He had made no plans to return to England and assume his peerage.

The statement of Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, that the moral effect of funding the American debt would be felt sooner or later by countries who have as yet made no attempt to face the problems of their debts, is considered significant.

DEBT SETTLEMENT
APPROVAL URGED

Harding Will Send Statement to Senate and House, Urging Action Without Delay.

Washington, February 5.—President Harding today prepared a statement to Congress asking for approval of the British debt funding settlement negotiated by the American and British debt commission. It was indicated that he probably would submit his recommendations to the senate and house tomorrow with an urgent request that approval be given without delay.

Meantime congressional leaders continued in conference over the most acceptable way to insure passage of the authorizing legislation before Congress adjourns on March 4. The measure is expected to be brought before both senate and house before the end of the week with all the driving force of administration influence behind it.

There also were a number of white house conferences regarding the prospects for legislative action and it was evident the president was preparing to act only after he had informed himself fully as to the state of congressional opinion on the subject. Early callers at the executive offices included Senator Watson, republican of Indiana, and Representative Mondell, of Wyoming, the republican floor leader of the house, with both of whom Mr. Harding is believed to have discussed what form of authorizing legislation would be least likely to encounter serious opposition.

Many of the senate and house leaders would prefer to see general amendment of the present funding law, broad enough to enable the debt commission to negotiate any form of loan with the debtor nations on terms analogous to those embraced in the British argument. The opinion is widespread among the administration that such a revision might lead to serious delay and that the wiser course would be to ask merely for an authorization covering specifically the settlement with Great Britain.

After his conference with the president today, Representative Mondell expressed the belief that Mr. Harding might refrain from urging the specific form congressional action should take, leaving that point for the senate and house to decide for themselves. Mr. Mondell suggested that two simple amendments to the present law, one to eliminate the 10 per cent interest restriction and authorize a rate of not less than 3 per cent, and the other extending the 25-year limit on final payment to 62 years would be enough to accomplish ratification of the British settlement.

Significance was attached to Senator Watson's statements because of mention which has been made of him as a possible presidential candidate next year and because of his prominence in the administration leadership since his close personal and political connection with President Harding.

Senator Watson, who is in consultation with the chief executive and in fact made statements on the floor of the senate today not long after returning from a white house conference.

The assertions of the Indiana senator, who is a republican, as assistant republican leader, in a speech started the political discussion. The Mississippi senator in a characteristic address referred at length to the announcement last week of the designation by Senator Lodge of Senators Wadsworth, of New York, and Lenroot, of Wisconsin, as assistant republican leaders, contending that this was directed against the possible presidential candidacy of the Indiana senator.

BRITAIN IS URGED TO ASK PAYMENT

Financial Relations Anxious That Hints Be Given France and Italy.

BY RALPH H. TURNER.
United News Staff Correspondent.
London, February 5.—Great Britain, having decided to pay the United States $4,000,000,000 borrowed during the war, is now being urged to "call" the loan made to France and Italy.

Powerful financial influences, it has been known, are being brought to bear on the government to remind France and Italy of their obligations to Britain.

Only by payments by the continental nations, it is pointed out, can the taxpayers of England escape the heavy burden of taxation that will be necessitated by payment of the debt to the United States.

The allfour notes which reminded England's debtors that they are expected to pay Great Britain the equivalent of the debt that is due the United States, it is stated, is the latest move in the financial campaign to get the continental nations to pay.

Britain will be lenient to France in case the latter nation modifies her reparations policy, but in view of the fact that the British government is collecting reparations from Germany by occupation of the Ruhr, many British financiers are being urged to demand that France formally asks France for a contribution.

Furthermore, English statesmen take the position that if France can afford to squander money in the Ruhr by the upkeep of a large army of occupation, she can pay a part, at least, of her debt.

The statement of Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, that the moral effect of funding the American debt would be felt sooner or later by countries who have as yet made no attempt to face the problems of their debts, is considered significant.

"WHITE FEATHER"
LAID TO BISHOP
IN GRANT DISPUTE

New York, February 5.—Because of their attitudes in the recent controversy over the deity of Christ, both Bishop William T. Manning and Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, of the Protestant Episcopal church, should be brought to trial by church authorities, Rev. Dr. Howard Murray Dumbell, rector of St. Luke's church, Darien, Conn., and a former classmate of the bishop, declared tonight.

Dr. Dumbell formerly resided in Green Cove Springs, Fla. The statement was issued from the offices of the churchman.

Bishop Manning was "guilty of glaring disloyalty to Christ" and "has shown the white feather and distinctly backed down from the position he took" in calling upon Dr. Grant "to correct unmistakably the impression which you have publicly given of your disbelief in our Lord Jesus Christ as God and Savior," Dr. Dumbell asserted.

Dr. Dumbell defied Bishop Manning to "state his belief as to who Jesus was, without ambiguity."

PREDICTS HARDING

United Front by Republicans in 1924 Campaign Predicted in Senate by Senator Watson.

Washington, February 5.—President Harding will be a candidate for reelection in 1924 and will be nominated unanimously by the republican party, Senator Watson, of Indiana, declared tonight.

The Indiana senator also promised his support for Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, the republican leader in the senate, for that position in the next congress, saying that if the senator from Massachusetts wants to be leader in the next congress, "I know of no reason why he shouldn't be and I am for him."

Significance was attached to Senator Watson's statements because of mention which has been made of him as a possible presidential candidate next year and because of his prominence in the administration leadership since his close personal and political connection with President Harding.

Senator Watson, who is in consultation with the chief executive and in fact made statements on the floor of the senate today not long after returning from a white house conference.

The Mississippi senator in a characteristic address referred at length to the announcement last week of the designation by Senator Lodge of Senators Wadsworth, of New York, and Lenroot, of Wisconsin, as assistant republican leaders, contending that this was directed against the possible presidential candidacy of the Indiana senator.

Indicated Dissension.
The republican move, Senator Harrison declared, indicated dissension and "dethronement" from leadership work of Senators Watson and Curtis, of Kansas, the latter a republican leader and whip. He also suggested that it might be a move to "kill off" the presidential movements reported for Senator Watson and Captain Curtis, the latter Senator Curtis' colleague.

During the melee Senator Lodge explained that he had not named Senators Wadsworth and Lenroot as "assistant leaders" but, as in the past, had designated them to aid in discussion of the Senate floor. Senator Lodge also paid tribute to the aid of Senators Curtis and Watson.

Wife-Beater Bound Over.

A small man was bound over to superior court under $300 bond by Judge George E. Johnson Monday afternoon in recorder's court, on complaint of his "better half," who topped him in height, head and shoulders and out-weighted him perhaps 75

Neighbors stated that he came in almost every night and chastised his wife with such force and effectiveness that the noise could be heard for blocks.

REPORTERS HALT FARRAR HEARING

Referee Declares Himself
Willing to Have Newspaper Men Hear All the Evidence.

New York, February 5.—Zeal of newspapermen to get past the doors which separated them from testimony in the divorce suit of Geraldine Farrar, former opera star, against Lou Tellegen, actor, today caused postponement of the hearing.

The newspapermen sent Referee Thomas H. Mahoney a plea for admittance which so moved him that he announced the hearings would be conducted publicly unless Supreme Court Justice Coburn, who referred the case to him, ruled otherwise.

He then postponed the hearing so attorneys for the stage celebrities could put the question of secrecy up to the court.

Will Entertain Motion.
The referee said he knew of no reason why the hearing should be private, but that he would entertain a motion for privacy if counsel desired to make one. Miss Farrar's lawyer immediately made such a motion, declaring the case already had been "aired too much in the newspapers" and that both sides desired to avoid publicity.

Referee Mahoney put the case over until tomorrow, advising the lawyers to consult Justice Coburn and commenting: "So far I see nothing in this case to distinguish it from thousands of other cases that are tried in the courts day after day. Unless it appears that the reason held by the justice who referred it was to avoid publicity, the hearing will be public."

Three Witnesses.
The record showed that three witnesses had been examined so far—John Bogardus, a restaurant-keeper at Long Beach, where Tellegen was alleged to have been guilty of indiscretion; August Larsen, a deputy sheriff at the Long Island resort, and Mrs. Marjorie Kettick Schuler, of New York, who described herself as Miss Farrar's secretary and advance agent.

Bogardus testified that Tellegen lived in a cottage in Long Island in the summer of 1921; that Miss Farrar did not live there with him but that a "Spanish type" girl occupied the bungalow with the actor. She, the witness said, was supposed to be Tellegen's step-sister.

Want City Planner To Decide Macon Auditorium Issue

Macon, Ga., February 5.—(Special.)—It was virtually decided at a meeting of the members of the municipal auditorium commission here today to bring a city planner and specialist on municipal buildings before reaching any definite decision as to the proposed new city auditorium.

The commission considered the problem of completing the building on the site, Cherry and First streets, or securing a new site, but finally deferred action.

"WEEK-DAY FINE" FOR SUNDAY DRUNK

Plans Are Made for $18,000
Campaign to Meet
Budget.

Macon, Ga., February 5.—(Special.) The reading of the report of the state committee of the Y. M. C. A. featured the opening session of the state Y. M. C. A. convention here today. The recommendations offered by the committee considered of greatest importance was that showing the urgent need of a state students' secretary.

It was pointed out there are eight organizations maintained in colleges and universities at present and the committee reported splendid work being accomplished, but greatly handicapped by the lack of state supervision and initiation.

W. W. Orr Presides.
More than 150 delegates are attending the convention, much interest centering in the visit of Dr. John B. Mott, of New York, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. Dr. Mott's address was "Y. M. C. A. as a World Power," was given at the opening session. W. W. Orr, of Atlanta, state president, presided at today's session.

Tonight a public meeting was held at the Mulberry Street Methodist church, with Dr. Mott as the chief speaker.

Plans for the $18,000 campaign to meet the budget of the organization for 1923, were made at the convention today.

The state campaign, which will be waged in Atlanta and other cities of the state beginning Monday, February 12, will be carried on in order to make possible the regular work of the state association during the coming year, the extension of its activities among the smaller towns and rural districts of Georgia. The committee of the association, after mapping out the extension of 1923 work and the continuation of existing activities, made up the $18,000 budget as the least upon which the association could operate in the present year.

OUTLINES WORK.
Mr. Orr outlined the work of the state Y. M. C. A. which is distinct from the regular "Y" of Atlanta and other cities, "as being regular Y. M. C. A. in small towns and communities where no regular "Y" exists. Our state organization is thoroughly Christian, and it has had experience. Its policies and program are the result of years of work and study. Its personnel is of the highest and it gets results. Judged by its fruits, it pays. It stays solid and gets repeat orders."

Those who attended the convention from Atlanta include Mr. Orr, Mr. Johnson, H. E. Montague, state boys' work secretary; Dr. A. E. Wheeler, R. A. Tracy, S. B. Talley and M. L. Throver, of the state committee; E. W. Swann and J. P. Shivers, members of the committee on management of the city railroad Y. M. C. A.; P. M. Colbert, secretary of the city "Y"; L. Bever, executive secretary of the city "Y"; G. R. Busk, social and religious secretary of the city "Y"; I. C. Matheny and C. D. Longshore, physical directors of the city "Y"; R. C. Beatty, secretary; P. Zerfoss, assistant secretary; William Goldsmith, K. G. Matheson, Jr., Paul Lyman and Walter Stevens, of the Georgia Tech Y. M. C. A.

FIRE INSURANCE FINES CUT DOWN

Jackson, Miss., February 5.—Total fines of $8,000,000 assessed against 142 fire insurance companies which formerly operated in Mississippi and which now are being prosecuted for alleged violation of the state anti-trust law, were reduced to an aggregate of less than $1,000,000 today through a decision of the state supreme court.

The court sustained a suggestion of error filed on behalf of the insurance concerns.

The original fines imposed by Chancellor Strickler in the Hinds county chancery court provided for payment of a minimum penalty of $25 daily by each company for a period of six years. The supreme court's decision reduced the liability period to two years.

WHAT ARE THE FACTS?

The National Merchant Marine association will meet in Washington this week.

Several delegates will attend from Georgia, among them Secretary of State McLendon, chairman of the Georgia port commission, who will be one of the speakers.

The pending shipping bill will possibly be the most important matter before the association for discussion.

It is one of the most important matters before the American people today, and it is unfortunate that a coterie in congress is trying to prevent it from coming at least to a vote, in an orderly way, as it is entitled, and as the people are entitled to have the issue measured by its strength without any log-rolling or manipulation.

As to the question of governmental economy—and that is certainly paramount—the scale is decidedly in favor of the so-called subsidy, and against federal ownership. The figures are impregnable.

Under the present plan the government spends $50,000,000 a year on operating a fleet without any provision of renewal, and with two-thirds of the government-owned bottoms, most of them of steel construction costing the taxpayers literally billions of dollars, not only tied up to docks on both coasts idle, and out of constructive merchant marine trade, but going to pieces, deteriorating, and emphasizing daily the absolute foolishness of government ownership and control of American shipping.

This most assuredly doesn't look like a continuation of the present system is a step in the interest of governmental economy, or that the pending bill contemplates extra burdens upon the people. The fact is the very reverse is true.

As the situation is now every dollar spent in continuing the federal ownership and operation, the latter of which has most miserably fallen down, is sending good money after bad, and if continued say for twenty years, the government will have spent the fabulous sum of a billion dollars in operating deficits, have an obsolete, worn-out and practically worthless fleet on its hands and nothing to look back upon but an unhappy experience.

Under the pending bill we will spend $300,000,000 a year and in ten years we should have to show for it a merchant marine operated and constantly replaced and expanded by private enterprise, with traffic built up by a foreign trade which American producers would develop to their own material interests, and which our government would foster.

Can there be any question as to the proper course of economy? One is a waste, the other an investment. One is stifling foreign trade, the other developing it.

The old idea of "subsidy" against which the democratic party is pledged, and very correctly so, does not apply in this case, for this is not subsidy in the offensive sense of helping private enterprises develop their own business. It is merely a proposed governmental policy in meeting a post-war reconstruction program that is not planned for getting a badly gored ox out of the ditch, but for restoring to this country pre-war supremacy in the merchant lanes, and therefore it becomes purely an operating fund, which means an enormous annual saving, invested in efficiency, but always under guarded federal regulation.

The McNary amendments provide publicity for the usual subsidy secrecy, open hearings and public decisions on matters of administration coming before the shipping board, all sales of ships to be public and competitive—thus divorcing the provisions of the bill from any semblance of special privileges.

It is hoped that congress may have a fair and unobstructed vote on this measure before the March 4 adjournment.

WELCOME TO ATLANTA!

Atlanta warmly welcomes the hundreds of delegates who are visiting the city this week in attendance upon the convention of the National Cleaners and Dyers' association.

These men are engaged in one of the potential branches of American industry, and employ hundreds of thousands of people, a large element of them skilled, and the earners of good wages.

In the industrial life of Atlanta the cleaners and dyers are a strong and influential factor. Many of the most prominent business men of the city are engaged in the industry.

Atlanta is rapidly becoming one of the great national convention centers of the country. This is not only due to the admirable work of the chamber of commerce and its auxiliary institution, the convention bureau, but to the most excellent transportation facilities, the large and always increasing hotel facilities, the general progressiveness of the city, and not the least, to the genial, inspiring, comforting and always hearty southern welcome that is a part of that Atlanta spirit that is proverbial throughout the country.

A WORTHY CALL.

In order to meet a pressing deficit anticipated in the 1923 budget the Georgia state Young Men's Christian association will seek to raise within the next few days the $18,000 necessary.

It is an amount that is almost negative in comparison with the great positive benefits of this association, and to say that it will be raised quickly is merely interpreting the deep appreciation of the people of Georgia in this institution that not only means so much to the young men, in helping to keep them mentally and morally and physically fit for the exactions of life, but means equally as much to the general welfare of all the people, in holding up always the standard of citizenship around which all progressive and worthwhile industry and business and profession must rally.

The field of the Young Men's Christian association is a large and varied one—the program of its useful activities strong and immense. Its work among the Georgia boys is particularly worthy of mention. The state association is charged with the responsibility of going into each community, getting together representative men who love boys. Then the organization follows, activities are planned, and the proper leadership begins to show in moulding the characters of these youths upon whom the future details of life must depend, and whose correct early training therefore becomes so acutely essential.

In all of the many calls upon the people of Georgia for worthy activities there is not one that carries a deeper or a more gripping appeal than that of the state Y. M. C. A., and we feel that the small deficit in its budget will be quickly and cheerfully met.

LIGHT'S LESSON.

"The Growing Light" is the subject of an editorial in the London Times; it refers to the light of the near-dawning spring season, and not to any rift in the clouds as to the general European situation.

It is an idyl of the light of life, which comes to a war-darkened world, as well as to a world at peace—the light wherein the world-gardens will read their winter dreams of flowers—the more beautiful because they have been away from home so long!

The "spring comes slowly" up the London way, but its great newspaper, the Times, can turn aside from the strife of politics and world-larring discords to welcome the first gleam of it, even as we do here, where spring is not so long a stranger.

The lesson of "The Growing Light" is what the spirit of the world needs to heed, and to profit by—the thought that things are after all growing brighter and better, and that light is never long withdrawn.

The sun-worshippers of the East know the light's lesson, and they take heart with the rising day.

Light on earth's fruitful fields and gardens; light on all the darkened ways, and world-wide in its blessing!

It can't be said that the ground-hog didn't get around to shake hands with the folks.

Another trouble is that Thrift week can't possibly make a year of it.

Many a man who thinks he has "the wind in a swing" dunno how to swing it.

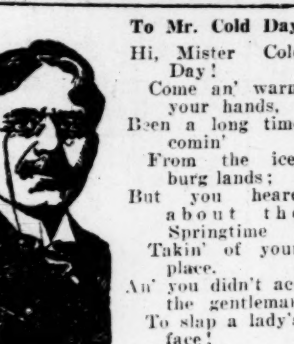

Up goes the cold flag. We're all wrong when the weather man strikes it right.

Germany complains that her industries are "paralyzed." Which was the condition of those of France when Germany was stopped.

France is watching England, and both have eager appetites for Turkey and trimmings.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MINTYRE

New York, February 5.—The passing of "Buster" Johnson removed an old figure in the zone of white lights. Young Johnson moved in aristocratic circles. He was as solemn as an owl and appeared totally out of tune with the young gallants about him.

At one of the dancing clubs one night he met Peggy Marsh, the London dancer who pegged the Marshall Field. It was one of the hair-trigger courtships—jump to the altar in a Connecticut town followed.

"Buster" became a night visitor to the club. He was seen in the evening, glancing about him and never uttering a word. A few months ago society was startled by the news that he and his bride were to appear as public dancers at "The Tent," a midnight haunt.

Broadway saw him and pronounced him Vernon Castle's successor. But he never smiled—not even when bowing to the roar of furious applause. Then he and Miss Marsh suddenly disappeared from Broadway.

News came one day of the mysterious shooting of Johnson at Jack Clifford's summer camp in the Adirondacks. The corpse and many sensational stories but Johnson and Miss Marsh insisted he was shot.

Several weeks later Miss Marsh announced she was going back to London. New York newspapers declared the couple had agreed to a six-month trial separation.

He was a splendid young chap and seemed in New York making a list of the picture in the Broadway life. He caught a severe cold during one of the recent heavy night storms and was in a hospital.

His was a short and spectacular romance.

One of the young bloods of the town recently invited a beautiful young sister of the merry-merry to dinner. She belonged to that section of the Broadway sisterhood classed as "beautiful but dumb."

When the young man met her he became gurglingly enthusiastic.

"My gracious," he said, "you look like a bit of rare old tapestry."

"You're not so snappy looking yourself," she retorted.

There is a confidence man in the Tenderloin who has returned from a voyage abroad. He was telling a group of his cronies about meeting a wealthy New Yorker aboard ship and offering her a large sum of money to work for him at $12,000 a year.

"This guy felt for me so hard," he said, "that he offered me a five-year contract to work for him at $12,000 a year. I got him in a card game and tricked him for 700 berries."

That forcibly illustrates the reasoning of the man who lives by his wits.

In New York the red flag indicates that the owner of the taxicab has been licensed to carry passengers.

The green flag is entitled to only the lowest rate of fare. But the trouble with the scheme is that the lowest rate is the highest.

The red flag, New York taxi rates are uniformly lower than in any other city and there are many complaints before the city board of taxicab rates.

A campaign has just been started by the yellow stranger committee in New York urging visitors to use only taxicabs that are clean and comfortable looking.

"You must come over, and when you do help us to get rid of these dirty cabs."

Engagement Ring of Duke of York's Fiancee

In last Friday's Constitution an illustration appeared of the Duke of York's magnificent engagement ring presented to his fiancee, Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon.

The center stone is a sapphire, the favorite gem of Lady Bowes-Lyon. On either side of the sapphire is a diamond. The three gems are set in an exquisite claw circlet of platinum.

Diamond engagement rings are quite popular in twin, triplet and cluster settings, and in combination with other precious stones.

NEGROES RETURN TO 'SUNNY SOUTH'

Many Who Listened to "Labor Agents" Are Begging Money to Return to Old Homes.

Cordale, Ga., February 5.—(Special.)—Negroes who were lured to the north are returning, and many who listened to "labor agents" are begging money to return to their old homes. In some instances negroes write to their former employers to send the railroad fare back to their old homes. They are just about starved to death and frozen to death, and that if they ever get back home that they intend to stay in the sunny south where they were raised and among their friends.

They were told all kinds of high wage tales to get them to go north but after they got there they found that could not make as much there as here.

The labor agent tells them that they can go north and get 85 cents per hour to begin with at most any kind of work, but when they report for duty they are told that they are inexperienced laborers and that they can only get from 15 to 20 cents per hour with a promise after they have stayed with the firm a while that they will be raised to 25 and 30 cents per hour.

CHAMBER COMMERCE CELEBRATES TONIGHT

Founders' Dinner and Annual Meeting to Bring Out Veteran Leaders.

The founders' dinner and annual meeting of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce will be held at 6:30 o'clock this evening at the Auditorium, marking two distinct events in the history of the organization. The dinner will be given in honor of thirty-six living members of the Chamber of Commerce who have taken active part in all projects sponsored by the chamber since 1883.

The Atlanta Grain exchange, created in 1871, marked the very birth of the present organization. The exchange was reorganized in 1883 and has since been recognized as the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting will be the fifty-seventh annual gathering of the organization and will also mark the annual transfer of the W. C. Four administration to the present regime of Alfred C. Newell, who assumed office January 1. English and L. H. Beck will be honored at the dual celebration. Captain English, the only living member of the directorate of 1883, will be awarded a life membership. CRIPPLE IN FIGHT Police Find Whisky and Crutches Dangerous.

Jack Dempsey, holder of the world heavyweight boxing title, has a very little if anything on J. E. Patterson of 101 Capitol avenue, if what five policemen told Judge George E. Johnson in recorder's court Monday afternoon is the truth, the whole truth, etc.

Patterson had been worshipping a little too fervently at the shrine of Bacchus Sunday night, according to his statement, and when two minions of the law called at his domicile upon the crowded streets of the city, he was found with crutches under the same roof, he resisted the visit decidedly and forcefully.

The officers found Patterson upon crutches and were wont to handle him with methods employed in riotous cases. It was plainly evident, according to the officers, that the becrutched man was very much under the influence of whisky. "Not ordinary whisky, but Atlanta 'corn,'" one of the cops said, "and a couple of shots of that particular brand will create an independent state of mind in anybody, crutches or no crutches."

Patterson, with the aid of his two crutches, a pair of well-developed shoulders, a good set of teeth, and a good leg and foot, put up such a scrap that it was necessary to send out a call for more policemen. Reinforcements came and it was after much blacking of eyes and skinning of exposed parts of anatomy that the "law" on the receiving end, that the cripple was finally removed from his home into the waiting patrol wagon.

Judge Johnson imposed a fine of $10 and costs with the understanding that Patterson, hereafter, worship Bacchus clothed in a straight jacket.

Slips on Banana.

A banana ped on the sidewalk of Piedmont avenue, near Decatur street, caused C. S. Babb, 56, of 208 East Hunter street, to slip Monday afternoon and he severely cut about the forehead. Babb was carried to the Grady hospital temporarily stunned by the force with which his head struck the pavement. Three stitches were taken in the wound and he returned home.

HOW TO GET RID OF COLDS AND CATARRH

A Simple, Safe, Inexpensive, Method that Clears Out the Head, Nose and Throat.

There are many people suffering from chronic catarrh who would like to know how they can stop catching cold after cold, for they must realize that sooner or later this may lead to deafness and other serious troubles.

Dr. Blosser, for years a specialist in catarrh, is the discoverer of a pleasant, direct method that can be used by women and children as well as men. His remedy is made from medicinal herbs, flowers and berries which you smoke in a dainty pipe or cigarette, and inhale the smoke into the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs, carrying medicine where sprays, douches and salves cannot possibly reach. It contains no cubes, tobacco or habit-forming drugs.

Dr. Blosser's remedy is effective in all forms of colds, catarrh, asthma, catarrhal headaches and ear troubles that may lead to deafness. You will breathe better and feel better after using it.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy may be had at any drug store; or if you desire proof of its beneficial and pleasant effect, send ten cents (coin or stamp) to The Blosser Co., 40 D.T. Atlanta, Ga., for a trial package.—(adv.)

Blackheaded Pimples Quit With S.S.S.

Why? Pimple-Poison Goes When Red-Blood-Cells Increase S. S. S. Builds These Red-Blood Cells.

You can be sure of this, nature has no substitute for red-blood-cells. Pimple-poison can't live in the red rivers of your blood! The tremendous results produced by an increase in red-blood-cells is one of the A. B. C's of medical science. Red-cells mean clear, pure rich blood. They mean clear, ruddy, lovable complexions. They mean nerve power, because all your nerves are fed by your blood. They mean freedom forever from pimples, from the blackhead pest, from boils, from eczema and skin eruptions, from rheumatism, from all the troubles that attend impurities, from that tired, exhausted, run-down feeling. Red-blood-cells are the most important thing in the world to each of us. S. S. S. will build them for you. S. S. S. has been known since 1828, as one of the greatest blood-builders, blood-cleaners and system strengtheners ever produced. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. "Never before has the dry cleaner, no matter how skillful he may have been, been able to guarantee to his customers that their clothes would be cleaned, odorless and spotless. Now, however, a dry cleaner who uses the Brower Clarifier can safely make such a guarantee."

"Over 300 Clarifiers have been sold in the past eight months and have been tried by hard usage, so we know that they will absolutely do the work. We guarantee that the machine will do all that our advertising claims for it."

ually shaping itself for the race, but there is plenty of room for new members—plenty and more to spare.

Last week five additional capital prizes were added to the already unexcelled list of awards. This action more than doubled the list of major prizes without increasing in any way the amount of competition.

A golden opportunity has resulted. New members are urged to come into the contest without one moment of delay. The game is going; the field goes to the winners without a shadow of favoritism, and no one who gets into the running without delay will suffer a handicap.

The rules for entering the contest are simple. Read them and get busy now:

Rules of Entry.

Here's how to get into the game: To enter your name, clip the entry blank from today's issue and mail it. A first subscription is worth 10,000 additional votes, and for every $25 in subscriptions secured before February 17, extra votes to the amount of 10,000 will be credited to you. Subscriptions should be rushed in early, as after February 17 the same $25 in subscriptions will not bring as many extra votes as a long shot.

Extra Vote Offer.

To each and every club member who will send in $25 in subscription payments before February 17, the Help-Yourself club will give 100,000 extra votes. For each dollar over and above the $25 sent in you will be given 4,000 additional votes. There is no limit to the number of extra votes you can earn during this period. There will be two other offers of extra votes but their offer will be for a less number.

No Restriction.

If you secure a subscription from any person whose paper is being delivered by a carrier boy, the same boy will continue to deliver the papers and receive his proper portion of revenue as in the past.

There is no restriction on territory in which to work. You can secure subscriptions and free vote coupons anywhere. If you have friends in Atlanta who wish to help you they can do so by giving you their subscriptions.

WANTED

The Constitution's Novel-a-Week

The Mantle of Silence

BY E. J. RATH

Next Week "Mr. Marx's Secret"
By E. Phillips Oppenheim

"How are you, Jane?" I asked. "Is the head better?"

"Jane?"

She repeated the name slowly after me, and then shook her head, as if she did not understand. "Jane?" she repeated again. "Jane?" I asked.

Here she broke off, and a shudder seemed to pass through her body. "Call my mother," she said suddenly.

"Your mother is not here, Jane," I answered gently, for I saw that her mind was still wandering, and I did not wish to startle her.

"Not here?" she echoed slowly. "Where did she go?" I said, humoring her.

"She did not go," I said, humoring her.

"I was to go with her," she went on, puzzling. "Is it after two?"

"It is only ten," I told her. "Perhaps if you will lie down, Jane, you will understand in a little while."

"Jane?" she repeated after me for the third time. "Who is she?"

"I suggested. 'You will know in a moment. You are Jane.' Once more she looked at me steadily and shook her head. 'I am not Jane,' she said softly. 'I am not Jane.'"

Her eyes roved again to the lake. "What is the place?" she asked, as a child might put the question. "That's the lake," I answered. "The lake? Then this isn't our house."

Why, yes, it was. She started violently and half rose to her knees. I put my arm on her shoulder to steady her, but she shrank from me; and I saw that she was something like a frightened child as she turned to look at me.

"Who are you?" she gasped, drawing back.

"I'm Mitchell—your guide. Don't be afraid. You'll understand presently. 'Something has happened to me,' she said. 'Everything seems to have been changed. You must tell me. What is this place?'

"You are in a camp—in the woods," I began. "You'll remember as I recall it to you. We left Deep-Water eighteen days ago—"

"Deep-Water? I don't know it. And who are you?"

"My name is Mitchell—Ben Mitchell. I am your guide. You are not afraid of me?"

"No," she answered, after a pause in which she studied my face. "I'm not afraid. But where are mother and Frank? Father is abroad, but where is mother? I don't understand."

"You had the accident here, yesterday morning. Don't you recall falling here? You were running over those rocks."

"Oh, tell me the truth!" she begged. "Why was I sent here? I remember the accident. I was sitting at the piano, waiting for mother to dress. We were going— Oh, please tell me about it. I shall be frightened if you don't explain."

Something seemed to fascinate her eyes, and I saw that she was looking at her hands, brown, strong and calloused. She lifted them closer, and studied them in wonderment, turning them slowly here and there as though she had just discovered the possession of them.

"My hands!" she exclaimed, thrusting them toward me. "Look at them! What have I been doing?"

"Your hands are all right," I answered. "They're just a little hardened up—with the work you know."

She rolled back the sleeve of her flannel shirt and gazed at the rounded, muscular forearm as though it were a curiosity. And then for the first time since her waking she seemed to notice the shirt itself. She felt it with her hands, and looked down at it with bewilderment in her eyes. Then she threw aside the blanket that had covered her. There was a little cry of dismay, and as she stared at the rough brown trousers, thrust into a pair of heavy gray lumberman's socks, I could see a deep red color rising under the tan in her cheeks.

"But, these!" she half-whispered, looking at me for an instant and then averting her eyes to the coarse muslin garments.

"That's just your traveling outfit," I said. "You see, Jane?"

"Why do you persist in that?" she asked.

"Because your name is Jane—Jane Boyce."

"Who told you that?"

"You did," I replied. "Why, everybody knows it."

"Everybody?" she mused. "Everybody where?"

"Back at the post—at Deep-Water."

"But my name is not Jane," she repeated. "And I cannot understand." "What is your name, then?" I asked, after a pause.

"Molly."

"Just Molly?"

"Molly Hope," she answered.

Then I told her the story of our trip, telling her that she was Jane Boyce, the woman prospector, and that I was Ben Mitchell, the guide she had hired. And then she amazed me again by saying she remembered nothing of all that happened. Then she asked me if this place was near New York, and I had to tell her we were more than a thousand miles from New York—in Canada. She seemed frightened, and I asked her if she couldn't tell me about her accident as she remembered it.

"Why, I was playing," she said. "Sitting at the piano, playing, and waiting for mother to dress. We were going to make some calls. There was a bronze statue on top of the piano; it is an upright, you know. A statue of Pan, and heavy. The maid must have left it very near the edge. I suppose it was the vibration that made it slip. Somehow, I knew it was coming, for I looked up. But it was too late for me to even move. It struck me here." Her hand was raised to the bandaged temple. "And then I remember falling—falling. I didn't hurt; I was just falling. And—why, that's all."

As she had put her hand to the wound I remembered what I had discovered as I stitched the torn flesh—the white scar that seemed to have healed long ago. Something stirred me strangely; I felt as if I sat in the presence of one of God's mysteries. This was in February, you say?

"Well, it is August now. I think you have been ill for some time."

"Have you a glass?" she asked quickly. "A mirror?"

I had a small one in my kit, that I used for shaving, but I was reluctant to let her have it, for fear she might see something in it that would produce a shock. But she was insistent, and I brought it to her.

She gave a cry as she beheld her face; then studied the reflection in silence for a full minute.

"I am old!" she exclaimed. "Oh, what does it mean?"

"You're not old," I answered, with a smile. "You're young. How old are you—exactly?"

"I was 21 on my last birthday."

She looked at me very positively and without hesitation.

"In what year was that?"

"Why, this year, of course. It was in January—nineteen-fourteen."

Then there flashed into my mind the lie she had told me on the first day of our journey—that she was 34. I knew it for a falsehood then; and I knew that what she was telling me now was far nearer the truth.

"Why did you ask the year?" she demanded.

"Why, because," I answered slowly, "nineteen-fourteen was five years ago."

Her face went paler under its tan, and for a moment I thought she was about to faint. Her body swayed and I steadied her. Then she buried her face in her hands and sat there for many minutes. At last I heard her murmuring, brokenly:

"Five years! Oh, my mother!"

I felt a lump in my throat, but I could not speak to her. I seemed as dazed as she. In a clumsy way I patted her shoulder and tried to comfort her in that fashion. At last she raised her head and looked at me with weary eyes. She put her hand on my arm and whispered brokenly:

"But I am Molly Hope. Truly I am. Oh, would you believe that?"

"I believe that you are Molly Hope," I said, gently, stroking her trembling hand.

I was awed with the miracle that I had seen with my own eyes. And the woman I had hated I now pitied from the depths of my heart.

CHAPTER VII

I had said that I believed her, and it was the truth; but my belief was a matter of faith rather than of reason. The whole startling unreality of the thing still confronted me.

We talked but little most of that forenoon. There were long periods of silence when both of us seemed to be overwhelmed with the discovery that her awakening had brought. I could see that she was trying to think the thing out, slowly and laboriously, and it was best not to disturb her, I believed. When she did speak, for a time it was mostly of her mother, her father and Frank.

Suddenly I remembered something, and, without telling her why, I began to whistle softly the opening bars of a tune. For a moment she seemed to pay no attention, but then she turned to me quickly.

"How curious—that tune," she said. "Do you know what it is?"

I had guessed, but waited for her to go on.

"It is the thing I was playing as I sat at the piano, when the accident happened. I remember it as clearly as though it were but a moment ago. How strange you should whistle it now."

"I whistled it because it was the tune that hurt your head," I answered. "That was a couple of weeks ago. I started it one day and you ordered me to stop it."

Finally we began to talk about what she had been during the lost years, and then I knew for a certainty that all recollection of Jane Boyce had vanished utterly from her mind.

"Had you ever been in Canada?" I asked, wondering what had brought her to this place.

She shook her head, after a moment's thought.

"Were you ever in London?" I pursued.

"I have never been abroad," she answered.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Neely entertained a group of friends at an informal tea on Sunday afternoon at their home on Piedmont avenue, the occasion marking the fifteenth anniversary of their wedding.

Columbia roses filling vases and baskets were used to decorate the house, while pink sweetpeas and narcissi and hand-painted plants in artistic arrangement, added to the color motif of pink, green and white.

In the dining room the table was overlaid with cloth introducing hand-embroidery and drawn-work. Three crystal bowls filled with free-sias, pink sweetpeas, lilies of the valley and jonquils formed the decoration, while two tall crystal candlesticks held slender unshaded pink tapers. The honeys were in pink and green, and the mints were embossed in pink and green flowers.

Confessions of a Debutante

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Larry, an erstwhile butterfly, ran away from my fiancé.

Jonathan Grey, fat, more than 40, very rich, and my mother's choice, to the arms of Larry, a man who dances well.

Miss Larry, diplomatically shows me Larry's weaknesses and becomes my friend.

I return to my home on the eve of my engagement party. Arriving at the party I see Jonathan, as best, with another girl beside him. She, however, was a pretension against my failure to appear, as my engagement is announced and the party goes on. After a quarrel with Jonathan on the way home, I find two bouquets awaiting me in my room.

My Stranger, a youth I met by chance, whose name I do not know, but who I love.

INSTALLMENT NO. 20.

"Fair and Frail"

Friday, December 22.

Roses! And a fragment of that waltz song. No signature was needed. I lifted them out of the vase and, wet, held them close against my body. My Stranger! For the first time since the beginning of this difficult period, tears were on the verge of being foolish, hot, sentimental tears. They dropped and glistened on the flowers.

I sat looking at the roses with my tears wet on their petals until the atmosphere cleared again. Then I read Mrs. Larry's note.

It was simply a line of good wishes and a standing offer of friendship. I loved her for it! She was so thoroughly good sport! She didn't say to me when we found Larry at her country place with another woman: "There now, you see; that's why he handled you off out of the way last night." He had a date with this other girl!

She let me draw my own conclusions, in the silence of my own being, thus sparing me further humiliation. I realized that Larry hadn't known who I was when he showed his car beside me the night I ran away from Jonathan. As I recalled his tone I recognized the genuine surprise in it. He had supposed me to be some strange girl—bawling, alone, along the street at night! That was the sort he was!

It came to me suddenly that there must be thousands of such girls, girls who are out alone at night, meeting along the darkened streets men whom they do not know—even as Larry thought of me! I was sorry—because it's such a hopeless game for a girl. Of course, probably, each one of them thinks, when she begins it, that with her beauty and her cunning, she can buck the tiger and get away with it. She refuses to look over her shoulder and read the record of the endless losing run on the back. The cards are stacked. And woman always loses! Whether a man wins or not I don't know. Perhaps it's a game where there isn't any winner—only a loser.

I lay long last night in the darkness of my room trying to visualize my future. I wondered if it stretched out before me merely a series of quarrels with Jonathan, the clashing of our wills. And I wondered if I should always come out of them as unscathed as I had from the one after our dinner. That had disturbed me not at all. I think a mouse must feel when from the safety of its corner it views the menacing of a clumsy dog which had been hot on its trail!

"No more games of cat and mouse!" Well—that's for me to decide!

I remember wondering just before my eyes closed, just why I am marrying Jonathan at all, and getting, with that thought, a mental vision of my dad's slightly stooped shoulders as he walked away from me. I think that is the thing more than mama's haranguing which is carrying me on into this thing with Jonathan. It's a passive influence I seem to feel a duty, yet scarcely knowing why, because surely it's not my fault that our financial basis is a shaky one. And, in the general acceptance of things, neither do I owe anyone support or a living.

Perhaps it is after all, that I am, myself, afraid to face life and its complexities, unforgotten by wealth! Am I, I wonder, one of those fair frail women, who never become more than the pawns of luxury?

This morning has been a riot of flowers and gifts and telephone calls. Everyone seems to want to wish me well.

A thousand times I have heard mama at the telephone, gushing to some friend of hers, painting my future in glowing colors—able, I, through it all I—I can see only the face of that other man!

Tomorrow—Mrs. Larry Talks About Marriage.

Mrs. Gay to Honor Two Debutantes.

Mrs. Ewell Gay will be hostess at a bridge-luncheon Thursday morning, at her home on East Fourteenth street, in honor of her nieces, Miss Douglas Paine, and Miss Margaret Morgan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Morgan.

Miss Paine and Miss Morgan are two of the most attractive and popular members of the debutante set, having been extensively entertained during the season.

The occasion will be in the nature of a farewell to Miss Paine who will leave with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Paine, on Saturday for a sojourn at Palm Beach.

Twenty friends of the honor guests have been invited for the luncheon.

American Legion To Give Dance.

The regular weekly dance of the American Legion will be given as usual on Wednesday, February 7, at Segado's hall by the Henry Thomas Ross Post No. 78, which is sponsoring this event. All members of the American Legion and other organizations of veterans are cordially invited, together with the friends who are introduced by them. The dances are proving to be one of the most popular of the numerous activities of the American Legion in Atlanta.

The Henry Thomas Ross Post No. 78, which is giving these dances every Wednesday at Segado's hall, is one of several Atlanta posts of the American Legion, and has made an enviable record in the membership drive staged jointly by all local posts. From a membership in of average size in previous years it has forged to the position of fifth largest in the state, having multiplied its membership by two and one-half and is still growing rapidly.

The officers of the post are: Evan P. Howell, commander; David J. Meyerhardt, vice-commander; George M. Normandy, adjutant; Ernest F. Brown, finance officer; Rev. Thomas H. Johnston, chaplain; Wyman T. Davis, historian; Gray B. Mitchell, service officer, and Frank B. Saunders, Alex. G. Conoley, Robert N. Maddox, S. Archie Mitchell, Major A. L. Pendleton, Jr., M. Clayton Webb, executive committeemen.

A permanent arrangement has been made with Warner's Seven Aces, the Atlanta Constitution orchestra, to furnish the music regularly for the American Legion dances.

Rummage Sale On Saturday.

The rummage sale announced by the League of Women Voters for Saturday, February 3, was postponed because the members had not reported enough goods to the ward chairman to make the sale worth while. The rummage sale will be held Saturday, February 10, and every member is urged to send something to her ward chairman by Thursday, February 8.

Mrs. John T. Moody, chairman of the eighth ward for the League of Women Voters, has returned from Florida. Mrs. Moody asks all members in the eighth ward to send something to her for the league rummage sale Saturday, February 10. Call Mrs. Moody, Hemlock 1122. Address 31 East Sixth street.

TODAY I AM REAL WELL

So Writes Woman After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Jamestown, N. Y.—"I was nervous, easily excited and discouraged and had no ambition. Part of the time I was not able to sit up as I suffered with pains in my back and with weakness. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, both the liquid and tablet forms, and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanaive Wash for inflammation. Today I am real well and run a rooming house and do the work. I recommend your medicine to every woman who complains, and you may use my letter to help any one else. I am passing through the Change of Life now and I keep the Vegetable Compound in the house, ready to take when I feel the need of it."—Mrs. ALICE D. DAVIS, 203 W. Second St., Jamestown, N. Y.

Often some slight derangement may cause a general upset condition of the whole system, indicated by such symptoms as nervousness, backache, lack of ambition and general weakness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine for such troubles. In many cases it has removed the cause of the trouble.

CHAPTER LXIV.

Gysbert Makes a Mistake.

Cynthia stepped back abruptly. She had trusted Gysbert so absolutely that she could hardly believe her ears, when he told her that he loved her.

"But—but you—" she faltered, then stopped, seeing by the expression in his eyes that it would be useless to remonstrate with him.

"Oh, Cynthia, don't refuse me. I love you as no other man ever can; such love will never be offered to you again." He advanced to her side again. "You must have known from the very first that I cared for you. Nothing in life means anything to me if you refuse to listen to me."

"But this is impossible!" she exclaimed, drawing away from him. "I can't listen to you. You forget that I am married."

"Your marriage does not mean much to you, does it?" he asked. "You and your husband have really separated, haven't you? Aren't you known in New York as 'Original Cyn'?"

She stared at him in bewilderment for a moment. Then she remembered the sketch which Lucille's artist friend had made of her, which had appeared in one of the papers when she was living in Greenwich Village with Lucille.

"Oh, but that—that was just a joke," she exclaimed. She could not bear to be misunderstood and underestimated even by this man, who was annoying her. And she could not believe that he would continue to be troublesome when he realized that he had made a mistake in judging her. "My husband and I have not separated. He was called out of town on business, and I came down here to Panama with his cousin, whom I am chaperoning."

"Yes, yes, I know," he exclaimed impatiently, and she could see that she had not convinced him that she was telling the truth. "Of course you'd say that; you have too much pride not to stick to your story. I admire you for it. But you might as well be frank with me, Cynthia. I love you. I need you, too. With your help I'll go all to pieces; my work will suffer terribly. I've told you of my fight with drugs. Well, I can't go on with it alone. You'll have to help me."

"But I can't," she protested wildly. "I don't love you. Even if I weren't married I wouldn't marry you."

He stared at her incredulously. "You don't know your own mind," he exclaimed. "You are so conventional, so tied up in the limitations that have always ruled you, that you don't dare admit even to yourself that you do care for me."

Georgia Forestry Program Will Feature Mrs. Conway

Mrs. Lillian Taliaferro Conway, of Washington, D. C., has been assigned on the Georgia Forestry association's education program and will be available as a speaker to the various women's organizations throughout the state after February 15. This announcement is made following the request of the Georgia association to the United States Forest service. Mrs. Conway will remain in Georgia for two months, and a series of meetings will feature her as the principal and entertaining speaker.

Mrs. Conway has had long experience in the forest service and is no stranger in Georgia, having many friends here. She is a great-niece of General Joseph E. Johnston, monuments of whom are found in many parts of Georgia.

Bonell H. Stone, president of the Georgia Forestry association, who brought a distinctive honor to the state when he was elected to the presidency of the Southern Forestry congress, held at Montgomery, Ala., during the week, is encouraged that the request of the association has been granted.

C. B. Harman, the association's treasurer, who has a slogan that the non-agricultural acres of Georgia grow trees, and H. G. Spahr, the statistician of the association, who has devoted much time to discouraging the forest fire evil in Georgia, feel that a great deal of good will result through Mrs. Conway's efforts to bring in to the very homes of Georgia the forest needs.

Mrs. M. E. Judd, of Dalton, Ga., the state chairman of co-operation, is working out an effective plan whereby the need of co-operation for forest production, protection and enjoyment will be better understood.

The office of the association, located at 307 Chamber of Commerce building, has been supplied with bulletins for free distribution. Solan L. Parkes, the executive secretary, will be glad to help in all problems. The educational program will without a doubt help solve the problem and the association takes this opportunity to state that the forest problems of Georgia are its first and last concern, and that the objective of the association is to be helpful.

Mrs. Rixley Gives Tea for Mrs. Rosser.

An interesting event of Monday afternoon was the bridge-ten at which Mrs. Luther Z. Rosser entertained at the Piedmont Driving club in honor of Mrs. Elham Bixley, of Chattanooga, Tenn., the attractive guest of Mrs. Langdon C. Quinn.

The guests were received in the grey room, which was artistically decorated with jonquils and yellow narcissi, arranged in French baskets. The bridge prizes were dainty French novelties.

Tea was served following the game. The guests included fourteen friends.

Mrs. A. M. Ingram and Daughter Are Members of G. S. C. Alumnae

Mrs. A. M. Ingram is a graduate of the Georgia State College for Women when it was known as the Georgia Normal and Industrial College for Women. She is chairman of the membership drive which the alumnae are inaugurating. Her little daughter, Nancy Elizabeth, is the first student enrolled immediately after the name was changed. She has an official enrollment receipt which will be presented to her with her diploma in the years to come.

The alumnae of the Georgia Normal and Industrial college, which has recently changed its name to Georgia State College for Women, will begin on February 24 a drive in Atlanta and vicinity for members who would like to join the college body. There are now 150 members of the alumnae.

Mrs. A. M. Ingram, of 48 Hemphill Avenue, is chairman of the membership drive. Her little daughter, Nancy Elizabeth, is the youngest enrolled student of the college. Though it will be some years before she begins her studies at the State College for Women, her name is already on the list.

When Governor Hardwick signed the bill changing the name from the Georgia Normal and Industrial college to its present one Nancy's application for entrance was presented to Dr. Marion Parks, president of the college, ten minutes after the bill changing the name was signed. The application was signed by teachers before a notary public. It was accepted formally by Dr. Parks, the college president, at the college, and when this ambitious little college girl graduates from the State College for Women some years from now this membership application will be presented along with her diploma.

The young college girl is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Rapp, pioneer Atlanta citizens.

The Alumnae association of the G. S. C. is sponsoring a tea at the Atlanta Woman's club February 24, at which Mrs. Ingram is hostess. Every Thursday afternoon from now until then a committee formed from the alumnae will be at the Y. W. C. A. assembly rooms to receive those who wish to make reservations for this tea. Mrs. R. A. Wilson is president of the G. N. I. alumnae.

Miss L'Engle Begins Lectures At Woman's Club

The course of ten lectures on "Home Management," by Miss Louise L'Engle, to begin at the Atlanta Woman's club on Tuesday, February 3, will be the first time such a scientific study has been included in the list of vocational class subjects. This particular subject and this particular teacher have been included in the spring program for vocational classes at the suggestion of Professor Willis M. Sutton, Jr., Professor Cliff, who is directly concerned with vocational class work throughout Atlanta. Application of business methods to housekeeping and homemaking is conceded to be one of the crying needs of the day and in the advanced and up-to-date type of woman's college domestic science is treated with deep respect and accorded a top position in the school curriculum. Miss L'Engle specialized in this branch of study and has added experimental work, European observation and laboratory investigation to the foundation received at Goucher and at Johns Hopkins.

Miss L'Engle with approach the subject of "Home Management" from the standpoint of the scientist who recognizes that proper planning of expenditures is as fundamental in the home as in the factory and that children sent to school on a properly balanced meal have a 10 to 1 start over the child haphazardly fed.

No limit is set to the number which may be accommodated in this class, as is the case in the other vocational classes at the club, so that any one desiring to take advantage of the present opportunity may enter the class by registering and paying tuition on the evening day. Tuition for ten lessons is $2.00. The class will be conducted every Tuesday at 3 o'clock for ten weeks.

Subjects agreed upon for the course include "The Budget," "Food and Its Relation to Health," "Classification of Foods," "Nutrition for School Children and Adolescents," "Efficiency in Planning and Serving Meals," "The Principles of Economic Buying," "Vitamines: How They Were Discovered and the Part They Play in the Maintenance of Health," "Special Diet for Patients in Illness," "Rules for Estimating the Number of Portions in Recipes." The final subject will be left to the choice of the class, and throughout the series of lessons every encouragement will be given to the individual questioner who has problems to present for scientific solution.

Black, Judge Walter T. Colquitt, and Miss Alice Heutz, the beloved social worker of the association.

Mrs. Marion Haxner, the new president of the Sheltering Arms, will be assisted by the full board of officers, including Mrs. Ben Lee Crew, vice president; Mrs. Eugene A. Black, treasurer; Mrs. John MacDougald, secretary; Mrs. Brooks Morgan, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. W. W. Banks, press chairman.

"RUGS— Like Poets, Are Born, Not Made"

You, too, would think so, looking at our new Chinese rugs. We know of no machinery to manufacture the soft petals of a rose—so it is easy to imagine that these rugs have grown as a flower blossoms. . . . Perhaps each fiber was once a tiny thread, each pattern a delicate tracery.

Now in the ripeness of their beauty, these rugs are as glorious, as extravagant of loveliness as any of nature's handiwork. The color schemes seem inevitable, yet varied as a garden of stately flowers.

Pure blues—king's blue, blue of the far distance, blue of midnight skies.

Gold—tempered to cream, or aglint with memories of a hundred Titian-haired princesses.

Mulberry—Dark as wine-color, and pale as ashes of roses.

But having grown to full-blown richness, these rugs will still live on. Plant them in your environment, watch them grow into companionship as a vine climbs about your door. Live with them through years, and they will mellow with time to the accompaniment of your own revolving ideas.

*We have hundreds of these Chinese Rugs
just arrived, to be offered at special prices*

Soot Explosion Opens Sessions Of Dry Cleaners

Banquet Monday Night on Ansley Roof Has Unus- ual Final Course.

The sixteenth annual convention of the National Association of Dryers and Cleaners opened on the roof garden of the Ansley hotel Monday night with a—

Hang . . . and a deluge of soot! The bang and soot was exploded from a miniature cannon in the dark and when the lights flashed on, Thomas P. Endicott arose and declared the five-day session of the convention formally opened and stated that all grimy and grinning delegates with their wives need not be alarmed at the dirt as Atlanta was provided with ample facilities for dry cleaning.

The evening was principally one of entertainment, interspersed with addresses of welcome by Governor Thomas W. Hardwick and W. J. Stoddard. Response was made by Mr. Endicott and Arthur Berg, vice president of the association.

There was a variety of entertainment which is seldom equaled in Atlanta, which consisted of "coon" dances to the music of a "coon" band, several vocal selections by the "Gasoline Four," which is composed of T. O. Martin, G. H. Faus, Sam Galloway and George B. Beck, all local members of the association.

The "coon" orchestra was composed of five performing exponents of the dance and they were ably supported by seven dusky maidens and six darker men who danced the famous "Buck" dance "with an eye" that could have only been the result of weeks of training under the direction of "Dixie Stoddard," it was declared by Mr. Endicott.

In his address of welcome Governor Hardwick stated that Georgia and the south welcomed the visitors heartily and that if they wanted anything, come here to tell Atlantans. He promised a pardon for any crime they might commit while here.

The convention will be in session through Friday. Today's program will include a trip to Stone Mountain by all delegates, luncheon at the Rotary club in the Piedmont hotel, and a dinner at the Chamber of Commerce catered by members of these organizations. The business session will open at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon and will be featured by addresses by Thomas H. Quigley, federal agent for vocational training; Dr. J. Bennett Hill, research associate in the United States bureau of standards; and Albert S. Adams, of Atlanta, past president of the Rotary international. Reports of officers will be read during the early part of the afternoon session.

AGED EVANGELIST VICTIM OF THUGS

Dr. Fletcher Walton in Serious Condition at Grady Hospital After Attack Monday Night.

Dr. Fletcher Walton, evangelist of the Georgia Methodist conference, was attacked Monday night from the back, struck a painful blow on the head and then abandoned by his assailant who escaped with about $15 in cash before the minister could see him plainly enough to give a description to officers.

Dr. Walton was carried to Grady hospital in the ambulance of Barclay & Brandon. At first physicians thought he had sustained a fracture of the skull, but an X-ray examination disproved this and it is not believed his injuries will prove fatal.

Officers who answered the call stated that the injury indicated the weapon used might have been a lead pipe, while the minister told the driver of the ambulance that he thought it must have been a plank which struck him.

No warning was given the victim. His assailant, according to the story told the police and hospital authorities, approached from the rear, struck him, then proceeded to rob him.

Call Officers R. E. Malone and R. C. Evans answered the call and are investigating the assault. Owing to the fact that the minister was unable to give a description of the person assaulting him, it was thought in police circles that the problem of apprehending the robber would be difficult.

Dr. Walton was making a call in the neighborhood of Crew and Love streets in connection with his work with the Southern Book depository at the time he was attacked.

CESSION BY CUBA OF ISLE OF PINES ASKED IN SENATE

Washington, February 5.—A resolution requesting the president to negotiate with Cuba for the cession of the Isle of Pines, off the coast of Cuba, to the United States was introduced today by Senator Pomerene, Democrat, Ohio.

Senator Pomerene had his resolution referred to the foreign relations committee for some discussion, in which he declared it was not regarded as an indication that the United States believed Cuba's claim to the island was valid or settled. The resolution recited that there was a dispute as to whether the United States or Cuba owned the island and that the American interest there, Senator Pomerene asked if the question of title should not be settled.

Senator Trammell, Democrat, Florida, said that he had heard with profit that or products of the island might be a consideration and he said he would object to such competition. Senator Pomerene replied that it was probably true that American producers on the island sought to be relieved from paying the American tariff, but he believed that all the citrus fruit output of the island could be marketed in this country, tariff free without interfering with Florida products.

Auto-Suggestion Called Business Helper by Ford

Coue Receives Warm Wel- come From the People of Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., February 5.—(Special.)—Emile Coue this morning went through the biggest motor factory in the world, the Ford plant. Later he lunched at the works with Henry Ford and his son, Edsel. Henry Ford told the apostle of auto suggestion that his method was already practiced in the Ford household and that he had read his book with profit.

Coue found Ford a man after his own heart and chatted freely with him during luncheon on the practice of auto suggestion in business.

When he spoke of the unusual cleanliness of the power house, Ford replied: "Whenever we notice a department getting slack we take the heads to the power house and make them examine it thoroughly. Then they go back and we are sure of the result, suggestion does it." Coue nodded approval. "I am sometimes asked," continued Ford, "what I would do if I had a factory that did not pay, and I invariably reply, 'Start cleaning it up. That would introduce the idea of efficiency and success and I am sure the reality would follow.'"

Monsieur Coue gave three lectures here to big audiences.

MACON PHONE GIRL IS HURT BY TRUCK

Macon, Ga., February 5.—(Special.)—Miss Ludie Griswold, an employee of the Southern Bell Telephone company, was painfully injured this afternoon at Cherry and Third streets when an automobile truck driven by a negro cut across the sidewalk and struck her. She sustained injuries to her legs and ankles where the wheels of the automobile passed over them. At the police station the negro driver was charged with violating the rules of the road and assault and battery.

Miss Griswold will recover.

WHOLESALE GIVING PRESENTS DANGERS, ASSERTS PRITCHETT

New York, February 5.—There is danger in wholesale giving and the accumulation of great sums in trust for general or specific purposes presents great dangers, Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, acting president of the Carnegie Corporation of New York, declared in a report made public today, which details the organization's activities for the last eleven years. During this period the corporation has given away about $25,000,000.

"Somebody must sweat blood with gift money, if its effect is not to do more harm than good," the report says.

Giving on the part of the great foundations, it continues, has acted as a stimulus in the upbuilding of colleges but has been responsible at the same time for by-products that were not anticipated and that can scarcely be regarded as benefits.

One of these by-products, it is stated, has been an "over-emphasis on going to college" and another "the transforming of the American college president into a soliciting agent."

Life-Sized Bust Of Queen of Old Egypt Is Found

Crowds Are Given Thrill by Sight of Discovery
in Tomb.

BY ARTHUR WEIGALL.
(Copyright, 1923, by North American Publishing Co., Inc., New York.)
Luxor, Egypt, February 5.—At noon today the crowd around the tomb of Tutankhamen was just dispersing after its sun-bathed vigil, when a native carrier appeared at the mouth of the sepulchral carving one of the most astonishing objects which has yet been brought out of this astonishing tomb.

It was an almost lifesize bust of a queen, presumably Akhnaton's daughter, Tutankhamen's wife, exquisitely carved in wood, over which is a coating of plaster pasted in a life-like manner. Her head she wears a crown which was specially designed by Akhnaton, for his queen. The face is painted yellow to represent gold, and at the forehead is a royal cobra. The face and neck are colored that brownish yellow which is the conventional hue for the feminine skin in Egyptian art and the eyes and curving eyebrows are painted black.

The bust is intentionally cut off sharply below the shoulders like those of sculptors' models and the body, over which is painted a plain robe, fastened at the neck, ends at the waist, the breast being only slightly indicated.

The features of the face show that soft languor, the expression which Akhnaton's artists loved to portray. The lobe of the ear is pierced as though to receive a jewel. The mouth smiles slightly and the eyes are sleepy and enigmatic.

This bust of the queen is the figure which has been called by excavators, a mummy or dummy of the king, whereas his robes were hung, but actually it is a sculptor's authentic model of the queen's features, somewhat in the style of those in the sculptor's studio at Tellamarna. It bears some unknown significance, such as that of recalling to the Pharaoh's memory in the underworld the beloved features of his girl wife.
